LOT 22B - Taxidermy Pheasant Wall Mount

Description

Ring-necked Pheasant (Phasianus colchicus) specimen mounted in alert standing position on natural wood branch base. This vintage gamebird mount features exceptional preservation of the species' distinctive plumage characteristics including iridescent dark green head with prominent red facial wattles, distinctive white neck ring, copper-brown body feathers with complex black spotting, and elongated barred tail feathers.

The specimen showcases the characteristic male coloration with expertly preserved natural features including glass eyes, detailed facial structure, and authentic feather arrangement. Professional taxidermy techniques are evident in the realistic stance, anatomical accuracy, and careful preservation of the vibrant feather patterns. This vintage piece would appeal to sporting enthusiasts, natural history collectors, or as decorative accent for lodge or rustic decor.

Condition Notes: Damage to beak area. Some minor wear to feathers at wing edges and tail tips consistent with age. Small areas of feather compression visible on breast area. Glass eye intact with good clarity. Facial skin coloration well-preserved with minimal fading. Wooden mount base shows slight age-related wear. Note: Clear acrylic
